City aldermen approve reproductive decisions bill opposed by archdiocese

Submitted on February 10, 2017

By Joseph Kenny | jkenny@archstl.org

The St Louis Board of Aldermen voted 17-10 on Feb 10 to approve a bill prohibiting discrimination based on a person's reproductive decisions or pregnancy Several members of the board spoke in opposition, saying it's a solution to a problem that doesn't exist and causes unnecessary divisiveness

The Archdiocese of St Louis was among the opponents of the measure that would make pregnancy and reproductive health decisions protected classes Alderwoman Megan-Ellyia Green (D-15th Ward) sponsored the bill, which moves to Mayor Francis Slay for his approval or veto She said the bill targets employment and housing discrimination

The archdiocese is expected to file a lawsuit if the bill is signed into law by Mayor Slay Archbishop Robert J. Carlson, in a statement after the vote, said that the archdiocese and its affiliated agencies will not comply with the bill

"I am outraged that the City of St Louis Board of Aldermen has now enshrined into law an ordinance which creates a 'sanctuary' for the despicable practice of abortion," he said "In other words, the laws of the City of St Louis now actively protect and promote the killing of unborn children"

Board Bill 203 provides an limited exemption for religious institutions to portions of the bill but doesn't provide protection for individual business owners who object due to religious reasons. The bill could bring fines against lessors and others who don't want to be associated with the abortion industry, according to opponents. After the vote, Alderwoman Carol Howard (D-14th Ward), who cited her Catholic faith, said the bill created discord among its constituencies at a time when unity is needed to tackle other problems. "We need to come together rather than create divisiveness," she said

Alderwoman Marlene Davis (D-19th Ward), who said she supports abortion rights, made the same argument during the debate, citing the problems that the bill causes the archdiocese and other religious groups It "opens a can of worms" that isn't necessary, she said

Alderman Joseph Vaccaro (D, 23rd Ward), who proposed sending the bill back to committee for further debate, said the bill could end up in court, and the state legislature "will do something to make it worse" Despite his plea that the bill involves a topic the city should avoid, his motion failed, 14-13

Alderman Stephen Conway (D-8th Ward) said the bill was proposed now because it's election season Causing divisions, he said, is one way people have learned to get elected "We shouldn't be here to divide people any more than we are now," he said

Alderman Larry Arnowitz (D-12th Ward) said he voted against the bill because he received 26 letters from people in his ward asking to vote against the bill and three postcards from people outside his ward asking him to vote in favor Howard said residents of her ward also were against the bill

Davis preferred to see more input on the bill "It's important to have concessions," she said "I don't want to see us split any more than we are There's no need to have Catholic institutions troubled"

She said the city doesn't have the legal standing to overstep state and federal laws

On Feb 1, a St Louis aldermanic committee passed the bill out of committee Green offered a committee substitute at the beginning of the hearing, making it a standalone bill That means it would no longer be part of the city's anti-discrimination law, as originally proposed Davis proposed an amendment that would provide individual protections, but it was voted down by the committee

Tom Buckley, general counsel for the Archdiocese of St Louis, told the committee at a previous hearing that the bill promotes religious persecution and discrimination, adding that it violates the U S Constitution and U S Supreme Court precedent, and violates state and federal laws The archdiocese, which has about 6,500 benefits-eligible employees and half a million Catholics, will take legal action if the bill

becomes law, Buckley said
Other entities, including the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and St Louis University — the latter which was referenced by aldermen at the Feb 1 hearing — also share concerns with the language of the bill
Archbishop Carlson stated that the passage of "this vile bill has been mistakenly heralded as a success for women by misguided organizations like NARAL and Planned Parenthood The passage of this bill is not a milestone of our city's success It is, rather, a marker of our city's embrace of the culture of death "
He said he welcomes others to join him in supporting, promoting and protecting children, women, families and life itself He hopes and prays that the City of St Louis "will someday soon rediscover the greatness that awaits if we would simply act in the interest of supporting life, in all its forms, from conception until natural death "
